

JOTT NETWORKS ADDS NEW PRODUCTIVITY FEATURES

Jott is more than 3-Times Faster Than Texting or Sending eMail from a Cell Phone or Smartphone

SEATTLE, Wash., September 5, 2007—Jott today announced the introduction of a new suite of features, adding significant value to the initial service offering announced earlier this year. The new version of Jott, which continues to be free of charge, allows consumers to maximize their productivity in multiple ways.

Jott allows consumers to use their voices to send email and text messages, with the option of listening to a recorded version of the message as well. In time trial research conducted by the company, email and text messages were created more than three times faster with Jott than thumb-typing the same messages.

“We continue to be committed to listening to our customers and incorporating their feedback into our service. Productivity, easier communication, and access to information on-line are three themes that our customers have continued to ask for,” said Jott CEO John Pollard.

With the new “Jott Links” feature, consumers can use Jott to access:

- Productivity sites, such as 30 Boxes™
- Blogging sites, such as, Blogger™, WordPress™, TypePad™ and LiveJournal™
- Social networking sites; for example, Yahoo™ Groups, Twitter™, Jaiku™
- Consumer information Services, such as Zillow™

“The Jott Links feature demonstrates that there are many more applications of our speech-to-text service. Jott is a whole new messaging platform with significant future opportunity. By offering these new Jott features, we’re addressing our customers’ requests to free up their time so they can focus on the things they really want to be doing, like spending time with family and friends,” Pollard said.

Other new features that expand Jott’s basic offering, such as Jott-to-Self, Others or a Group, include the introduction of “Jott Folders.” Consumers can now Jott directly to folders, such as “Expenses,” “Work,” or “Personal,” to capture and file important data throughout the day. Additionally, Jott Reminders allow consumers to set a date, time and subject with just their voice, and receive reminders via text or email prior to an event. What’s more, consumers can now personalize their Jotts with a Jott profile signature; e.g., a real estate professional can automatically attach a personal slogan and picture to each outgoing Jott.

A clear benefit the service affords is improved safety while driving. Consumers can email or text others using their voice with the Jott service, yet keep both hands on the wheel. In more and more states, this is not just seen as common sense, but the law. Pollard added, “Our customers tell us they want to be more productive during drive time, but they also want to be safe. We help them on both counts.”
